Hamilton Medical acquires STIMIT AG

Hamilton Medical has successfully completed the acquisition of STIMIT AG, based in Biel.

STIMIT AG develops noninvasive technologies for stimulating the diaphragm muscles of mechanically ventilated intensive care patients using magnetic fields. With this acquisition, Hamilton Medical expands its portfolio and strengthens its position in the market.

The integration of STIMIT AG into the Hamilton Group will take place gradually, with the aim of strategically combining the respective competencies and fostering joint growth.

“We look forward to a shared future, developing new ideas together, advancing innovation in the field of mechanical ventilation, and shaping sustainable success,” emphasizes Bob Hamilton, CEO of Hamilton Medical.

“We remain committed to the STIMIT innovation the next years to come, and we know that Hamilton Medical is the world’s best partner to unlock the full global potential of our technology in the respiratory care market,” say Ronja Müller-Bruhn (CEO), Harald Genger (COO) and Oliver Müller (Head of Sales) of STIMIT.
